

THE POWER OF VISION

How the Generationally Focused Church Can Help Change the World

The Scripture is clear - without a vision, the people suffer. So does the church, the family, and so will the future!

A clear, Biblically-based vision is part of what the modern Church needs today if we are to fulfill the Great Commission that our Savior has given to us.

Join us as Gospel Legacy leaders from across the country gather in Kansas City to share with us about the power of a godly, generationally focused vision.

These leaders will share insights into these topics and beyond:

- How to lead and shepherd generationally
- How to deal with the inevitable conflict of leading strong people
- How to live the vision both within and outside of the building's walls
- How to deal with disappointment

This conference is designed for leaders, pastors, church planters, parents, and young adults. Of course, entire families are welcome to attend!

Jeff Akin is a church planter and the pastor of The Church at Louisville (TCAL). Those closest to him note his caring heart for believers and unbelievers alike, passion for urging Followers to turn beliefs and knowledge into Christ-honoring actions, and enthusiasm for teaching men and maturing them as servant-leaders of their families. Jeff lives on a small farm in Louisville, KY with his wife, AmyJo, sons Tyler, Sam, and Eli, and daughters Ellen, Abby, and Sarah Ruth.

AmyJo Akin is a follower of Christ, wife of Jeff, and mother of Ellen, Tyler, Abby, Sam, Sarah Ruth, and Elijah. She lives with her family on a small homestead in Louisville, KY. She loves to share with other women, especially young wives and mothers, about serving God and family, and reaching out to others in the name of Christ. She enjoys working alongside her entire family on family or church projects, homeschooling, cooking and practicing hospitality, and raising the animals and plants on their homestead. A passionate student, Amy Jo grabs time to read whenever possible.

With others, Eric Burd is alarmed at the rate of decay of the American culture. As pastor of Vancouver Household of Faith (HOF), president of the HOF Fellowship of Churches, and a director on the Council for Gospel Legacy Churches, Eric seeks to partner with others in exalting Jesus and restoring the importance of discipleship. Residing in Battle Ground, WA, Eric and Jerry are celebrating their 40th year of marriage, have five children, seven grandchildren and have been homeschooling since 1983.

Mark Fox has been pastor of Antioch Community Church in Elon, NC, for 28 years and is the author of six books. He writes a weekly column for the newspaper, and has taught public speaking at Elon University since 1990. Mark hosts a podcast at www.healthychurchradio.com, and writes a blog at www.jmarkfox.com. Mark and Cindy have seven children and four grandchildren and rejoice in the good fruit the Lord has produced in and through their family.

Dr. Jeff Klick is on the Board of The Council for Gospel Legacy Churches and also serves as a teaching consultant with The Institute for Church Management. Dr. Klick has a Master's in Pastoral Ministry, and a PhD in both Biblical Studies and Pastoral Ministry. With a heart for fathers, marriages, and families that glorify God, he founded Hope Family Fellowship in December 1993. Dr. Klick is a frequent blogger, has authored seven books so far, and is not too bad of a racquetball player. Dr. Klick married his high school sweetheart, Leslie, in 1975. They have three adult children and ten grandchildren.

Brad Shedd is the pastor of Generations Christian Fellowship which began in 2008, as the "Household Worship Service" of Harvest Assembly, in Chesapeake, VA, and became an autonomous church in January, 2014 (www.generationschristianfellowship.com).

Completing his Master of Divinity at Regent University in 1997, Brad was awarded the honor of Outstanding Divinity Student. He began formal ministry at Harvest Assembly in the same year. Brad lives in Chesapeake with his wife Alyson, and their eight children: Olivia, Sophia, Stephen, Ava, Susanna, Laura, Juliana, and Brennan.

Dr. W Ryan Steenburg is the Founder and Director of the ministry Daddy Discipleship www.DaddyDiscipleship.com and the founding Director of The Council for Gospel Legacy Churches. Ryan earned a Master of Divinity from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in 2008 and a PhD from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in 2011. Ryan lives in the City of Spring Valley near Louisville, KY, with his wife Kristen, daughters Caitlyn, Anabelle, Mikayla, Jordan, and sons Wes and Joshua.
